DR. HALPERN CHOSEN AS OUTSTANDING PROFESSOR OF 1985

by Jackie Wilson

She's funny, informative, likeable and an authority in her field of critical thinking. She is an associate professor of psychology and also the associate dean of undergraduate programs here at CSUSB. She's a published author and has served on a variety of campus committees, most recently chairing the campus' Innovative Ideas Committee. Who is this woman extraordinaire? Dr. Diane F. Halpern of course!!

Dr. Halpern was recently nominated as the university's outstanding professor for 1985 - 1986 by the Outstanding Professor local selection committee headed by Helga Lingren and composed of faculty, students, and alumni. Two outstanding professors are named each year for the system from among the CSU campus nominees. The major criterion used for nomination is superlative teaching and obviously Dr. Halpern more than fulfills that criterion!!

Students constantly praise Dr. Halpern's enthusiasm in her teaching. They say she has a terrific ability to make complex subjects simpler as well as enjoyable. Her reception to student problems and helping them to resolve them is another plus. One student said "She exemplifies all the best qualities in the skill of teaching." "I try to involve my students as much as possible", Dr. Halpern said when she is teaching her students.

As an authority in the field of critical thinking, Dr. Halpern has taught, widely published and has been consulted in her field. She has received a faculty professional grant (development) and three affirmative action grants which enabled the completion of her first book, Thought and Knowledge: An Introduction to Critical Thinking, published last year. A second book is to be published sometime in March, it is titled Sex Differences in Cognitive Abilities.

Round Table Discussions Explore Abortion Issue

The controversial issue of abortion will be explored in a forum at 8 p.m., Thursday, Jan. 16 at Cal State, San Bernardino.

Held in the Student Union Multipurpose Room, the discussion is part of a series of "Round Table" talks, which are designed to provide enriching experiences for the university community as well as the general public.

The abortion discussion panel will be comprised of three people on the pro-life side of the issue, three people who favor pro-choice and a moderator.

The panelists will include Susan Carpenter McMillan of Los Angeles, a long-time feminist who once considered herself a supporter of the pro-choice position until she had a personal experience at an abortion clinic seven years ago. Since then she has become a pro-life activist and is the media spokesperson on the issue for the Right to Life Movement in the state, which includes more than 120 organizations. In addition, Ms. Carpenter McMillan is first vice president of the Right to Life League of Southern California and also serves on the board of directors for the Pro-Life Council. She is president of the California Chapter of Feminists for Life and is head of the legal committee for the Los Angeles Commission for Women.

Julie Lively of Santa Barbara is a board member of the Crusade for Life and past president of "Students Pro-Life" of the University of California, Santa Barbara.

Dr. Chris Freiling of San Bernardino, assistant professor of mathematics at Cal State, is participating on the panel as a concerned citizen and parent. He and his wife have two children and are expecting another.

Contributing to the discussion on the pro-choice side of the issue will be Dr. Thomas Moody, assistant professor of philosophy at Cal State. He will analyze the issue of the personhood of the fetus, which is a topic he covers in his classes.

An Evening of Music With Trumpeter Maynard Ferguson

by Jackie Wilson

Maynard Ferguson, virtuoso trumpeter once called the youngest bandleader in the '50's is now in his fourth decade with an all new band. He will appear in a January 21st 8:15 p.m. concert to be held in the University gymnasium.

Cal State students and the general public will get to experience firsthand this exciting new band with its totally original style that audiences and record collectors are raving about. The instrumental makeup of his new band includes five horns, percussion guitar, keyboards, bass, and drums. Mr. Ferguson himself plays a variety of instruments such as the saxophone, the superbone, the Firebird, the baritone horn and flugel horn.

His music ranges from what jazz purists call "funk and fusion" to mainstream hits. His first great recording was from the 1977 Rocky movie, "Gonna Fly Now" for which he received his first Grammy nomination. A second Grammy nomination came in 1983 with the single "Don't Stop" from his "Hollywood" album. Mr. Ferguson is a diverse and energetic musician whose talents surpass celebrated trumpet player.

In addition to performing, composing and arranging music and co-designing horns, Ferguson also encourages young, talented musicians and teaches educational clinics at high-schools and universities.

Mr. Ferguson and his band members will conduct a music clinic from 4-6 p.m. in the University gymnasium for area high-school jazz band members. A fee of $7.50 will enable the students to participate in the clinic, receive dinner at the University and attend the concert.

Maynard Ferguson's career has spanned nearly forty years. The first of three major career periods began by 1948 with his debut in the Boyd Raeburn Band. In the 1950's, Ferguson was lead trumpet with Charlie Barnet and Jimmy Dorsey in the Stan Kenton Band.

Serrano Village Council Presents

The Second Annual Winter Ball

It's a cool, gloomy evening and there is a special spark of tension in the air. Large lights flash back and forth through the clouds. The noise of hustle and bustle ring through the silent of the people entering the building. Finally, a white and gold limosine pulls into the driveway. The doors open and out steps Prince Charles and Lady Diana. More cars pull up and more celebrities join the yearly extravaganza—The Winter Ball.

All these celebrities may not be present but I know for sure that it's going to be a fun and exciting night. The ball will be held on Friday, January 24, 1986. The hours are from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Where do you ask? It will be held in the University Commons. The cover charge is $7.50 per single and $10.00 per couple. Tickets can be purchased through Serrano Village Council in the Housing Office, x7405.

A special invitation is extended to you to join the fun and musical adventure presented by our DJ's Sounds of Success. But wait we also have hors d'oeuvres, mocktail bar and a photographer for this very special night.

Remember the Winter Ball on Friday, January 24, 1986 and oh yes, it is semi-formal. Program Coordinator Victor Uribe

STUDENTS PARTICIPATE IN MODEL UNITED NATIONS 1986

by Jan Helen Stathis

January 20th is the deadline for submitting applications for eligibility to serve on the San Bernardino delegation to the National Model United Nations. A faculty committee will select seven students to travel to New York City and represent the nation of Mozambique. All expenses, except meals, will be provided by Instructionally Related Activities Funds. Students will earn five units of independent study by participating in the simulation. Additionally, a paper based on the research done in connection with the project and participation in a high school united nations will be required.

As a member of last years' delegation I can recommend this program to any student who desired to study important issues and ideas. The M.U.N. experience promises the student an opportunity to exercise the skills of reason, organization, and expression in a model, concrete situation. Delegates can look forward to working with other students from around the nation and the world in learning about the milieus of other countries and about the forum in which international politics are played out. Participation in the M.U.N. is an opportunity to broaden your understanding of the world. Any student who wished to be considered for the 1986 M.U.N. should pick up an application in the Political Science department, AD-130 (887-7238)

Phi Kappa Phi Indoctrinates Honor Students

Invitations will be extended soon to students eligible for membership in the Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi. Founded in 1897 at the University of Maine-Orono, the Society's primary objectives are recognition and encouragement of superior scholarship in all academic disciplines. Accordingly, eligibility standards are highly selective, with membership limited to the top 10% of seniors and graduate students and to those juniors in the upper 5% of their class.

Currently, there are 241 Phi Kappa Phi chapters nationwide, including organizations at the University of Southern California, UC-Davis, University of the Pacific and thirteen CSU institutions.

The annual Installation Banquet for new members of the Honor Society will be held in late May. Dr. Robert Blackey, chairman of the History Department and CSUSB's Outstanding Professor for the 1983-1984 Academic Year, will be the featured speaker.

In addition to the installation of new members, the CSUSB chapter will nominate one of its current or prospective members for consideration as a Phi Kappa Phi Graduate Fellow. Every year the Phi Kappa Phi National Office awards 50 fellowships to support students in their first year of graduate or professional study. Each fellowship award is $6000.

If you are a current or prospective member of Phi Kappa Phi and intend to begin graduate study in Fall, 1986, you may obtain additional information about the Phi Kappa Phi Graduate Fellowship Program from Professor Edward Erler (887-7238, AD-130). Completed applications must be submitted to Dr. Erler by Monday, February 10.

By the way, no insurance is necessary in order to go to the Student Health Center.

Best Comedy of 1985: ROCKY IV

by John Purcell

The funniest film I've seen this year is Rocky IV. Sylvester Stallone has succeeded in further burying the Rocky saga into the ground. But who wouldn't do the same if they had a chance to make tens of millions of dollars through the use of poor acting, poor grammar, and yards of film from the first three installments of what has now become one of the top grossing movie series of all time. Admit it. You'd do it too.

For this film Stallone has cast his wife, Brigitte Nielsen as the wife of Drago, the Russian giant played by Dolph Lundgren. The Soviets now wish to enter into professional boxing. Drago, a scientifically trained, steroid slurping ogre is their country's "Best".

When Rocky's friend and former boxing foe, Apollo Creed, sees a match against Drago as a way to regain the fame and glory he lost when Rocky became champion he arranges an exhibition match. This is where the fun starts.

James Brown makes an appearance before the fight and Drago is stunned at the show Apollo has made of the match. When the lights stop flashing and the show is over Drago lets Apollo know he wasn't pleased. After telling Rocky not to throw in the towel for any reason, Apollo steps into the ring and is killed after a series of blows from the Russian.

True to form Rocky must fight Drago because, "Hey-yo, It's something I gotta do."

The match is set to be fought in Russia and Rocky is flown behind the iron curtain and is brought to an old log cabin where he will train. Of course he is guarded by two KGB who somehow can't keep up with Rocky. The training sequences end with a climb up a high mountain. Rocky reaches the top of the jagged cliff and jumps around. The scene is shot from a helicopter and the person who climbs the cliff isn't really Stallone. Before the fight we get to see a good ten minutes of flashbacks. I think the next movie will probably be called "The Best of Rocky" or "Rocky's Greatest Hits."

The fight is typical. Rocky gets the stuffing beaten out of him for most of the fight, but can't be knocked out. The Party Chairman who had expected to see the crushing defeat of the American is incensed and passes his anger down the chain of command until Drago's boss runs down to yell at him. Drago picks the man up and tosses him to the ground. Then the audience starts to cheer for Rocky. The Party Chairman doesn't order everyone in the audience sent to Siberia, like a real Party chairman would. Rather, he joins in the cheering for Rocky. When Rocky gives a speech after the fight—I'm not telling who wins because I'm sure you'll have a hard time figuring it out—he says, "We just want our country to love us as much as we love it." Whoops!! wrong movie.

There are a few moments that are worth at least hearing about. The soundtrack is excellent but don't pay $5 to hear it once at the theater. Spend an extra three or four bucks and buy the album.

At one point the scene in the movie where Rocky tells his son how trying to go one extra round when you don't think you can make all the difference—I thought, "Hey that sounds like Frost's 'The Road Not Taken.'" Then I was shown several reels of flashbacks from the first three Rockys and said to myself, "No way!!"

DESIGN YOUR OWN 4 YEAR DEGREE

by Jackie Wilson

Welcome back!! I hope you all enjoyed your Winter break. This quarter I will start off Cutting the Red Tape talking about the B.A./B.S. special major here at CSUSB.

The special major is specifically designed to provide a carefully structured, interdisciplinary program of study for a student who feels that the existing degree programs offered here at the University do not adequately accommodate their academic and professional objectives.

For consideration for admission to the special major program, a student must select a full time faculty member to serve as his or her academic advisor. The faculty member should be chosen from one of the fields represented in his or her program of study. The special major is available only in exceptional cases.

Several criteria are involved for fulfillment of the special major. Some of the guidelines are as follows: 1. The special major must involve an interdisciplinary program of study drawn from the regular offerings of two or more departments. 2. The proposed special major cannot duplicate degree programs offered anywhere in the CSU system. 3. The special major cannot be used to substitute for a recognized degree program which the University is not authorized to offer, to bypass normal graduation requirements, or as an alternative to completion of the requirements for a program in which the student is in difficulty (academic). 4. The program may not be used as a second major or second bachelor's degree. 5. At the time students apply for admission to the Special Major Program (B.A./B.S.), they must have more than one full year of academic work (45 quarter units) remaining to meet the minimum requirements for a bachelor's degree. It is not a major that can be designed in your senior year.

The special major application packet consists of 7 copies that contain questions about your academic and personal goals as well as forms on which you complete your desired upper and lower division coursework and alternate courses. In the upperdivision coursework a minimum of 40 units is required, excluding General Education. After submission of the completed application, it will be forwarded to the University Curriculum Committee for review and comment. If approved, the application will be referred to the Associate Dean of Undergraduate Programs for final action.

For more information, contact Dr. Diane Halpern in AD-189 or the Associate Dean of Graduate Programs in AD-182. Forms are available through the Office of Academic Programs.

Choosing a long distance company is a lot like choosing a roommate.

It's better to know what they're like before you move in.

Living together with someone for the first time can be an "educational" experience.

And living with a long distance company isn't any different. Because some companies may not give you all the services you're used to getting from AT&T.

For instance, with some companies you have to spend a certain amount before you qualify for their special volume discounts. With some others, voice quality may vary.

But when you choose AT&T, there won't be any surprises when you move in. You'll get the same high-quality, trouble-free service you're used to.

With calls that sound as close as next door. Guaranteed 60% and 40% discounts off our Day Rate—so you can talk during the times you can relax. Immediate credit for wrong numbers. Operator assistance and collect calling.

So when you're asked to choose a long distance company, choose AT&T. Because whether you're into Mozart or metal, quality is the one thing everyone can agree on.

The time to act is now

File early for financial aid

by Jerry Nye

Cal State students who are considering financial aid for the 1986-87 school year need to act now.

To be eligible for most types of financial aid, a student must meet certain requirements. They must be a United States citizen or permanent resident, demonstrate financial aid eligibility, maintain satisfactory academic progress, and be enrolled on at least a half-time basis. They must not owe an over-award or be in default on a previous loan, and they must sign a Statement of Educational Purpose and a Selective Service Registration Compliance Statement certifying registration for the draft or reason for exemption.

Applications are usually available in December and may be mailed to the College Scholarship Service after January 1. It is strongly recommended by the Financial Aid Office that students apply early to get a chance at all available programs.

An application must be filed by March 1, a priority deadline, to be given first consideration for funds. However, students applying for Cal Grant programs in addition to other types of aid must have the application in the mail by February 11. All additional documents requested must be on file by May 1 for priority consideration.

Any applications filed after March 1, or completed after May 1, are processed on a first-come, first-served basis. Filing late may limit the amount and variety of funds available.

The major form used for financial aid in California is the Student Aid Application for California, the SAAC. It is required of all financial aid applicants and is used to indicate need for most programs. A copy of the SAAC can be obtained in the Financial Aid Office.

The completed SAAC form and filing fee should be mailed to the College Scholarship Service, P.O. Box 70, Berkeley, California, 94701. Specify that a needs analysis be sent to CSUSB, school code 4099, when applying, and also to the California Student Aid Commission, code 0024, if applying for a Cal Grant. Always keep a copy of everything completed on file. Parents of dependent students must also complete the application.

All independent students must provide the office with a complete copy of their federal income tax return, the 1040 plus all schedules, for the year prior to the year in which aid is received. Dependent students must provide a complete copy of their own and their parent's federal return. If no return was filed, a certification must be completed to that fact.

Forms must also be completed if student or parents received any non-taxable income such as welfare, Social Security, or unemployment during the prior year. If any type of income has changed in the present year, the student may be able to field a Special Condition form to that effect.

Scholarship applicants, in addition to the steps above, must submit a brief autobiographical essay of one to two pages, and two letters of recommendation from instructors. To be considered for scholarships, a student must have a 3.0 GPA, an academic transcript on file with the Admissions and Records Office, and have all aid applications materials on file by March 1.

New course will focus on personal finance

by Midge Thornton

The department of accounting and finance is offering a personal finance course this winter that is designed to benefit everyone, regardless of major.

Finance 201 is a general education elective held on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 10 a.m. to 11:50 a.m. The course will focus on personal money management and financial planning.

Professor Richard Emery will teach the course for the first time and is optimistic that it will succeed in giving students a good foundation for financial planning.

"It will give students a general and broad overview of various aspects of financing so they will be in the position to set goals," Emery said.

The course will cover areas such as personal cash management, taxes, insurance, investment, housing, credit, loans, education, and retirement planning.

Emery feels the most important step in securing finances is to set objectives and goals. Doing so helps in organizing financial planning and obtaining the desired outcomes.

"Objectives have to be reevaluated constantly because needs change as time goes on," he said. "Financial planning is a lifetime process."

Coyote baseball to debut in Spring '87

by Dan Williams

Plans for Cal State San Bernardino's intercollegiate baseball and softball programs are going as scheduled, which means the Coyotes will be fielding teams in both of these sports next year, according to Reginald Price.

Dr. Price is the athletic director, and the one responsible for implementing all of the university's present teams.

The reason for establishing a baseball and softball program is two-fold, says Price. "First, there has been a great deal of interest by students in both baseball and softball; and second, we need a couple more sports in the Spring to balance out the program."

Currently, Cal State has nine athletic programs, including the new golf team, but only two—men's and women's tennis are held in the springtime.

Price is looking forward to successful teams in baseball and softball, which will be made up of players mostly from the Inland Empire—an area traditionally rich in baseball talent.

"Cal State will provide talented players a four-year university, while allowing them to live at home and commute to school," Price said.

The first matter of business, according to Price, is to recruit a talented coach for the two teams. The word is now being spread that Cal State is looking for coaches, and Price expects to make the final decisions around the first of Feb.

"Most of our coaches have come from the greater L.A. area, but they could be from anywhere, as long as they are qualified," Price said.

"Gear-up" funds have been allocated for the programs, and work has begun on the purchasing of equipment and manpower for construction of an on-campus softball field. The site for the women's field will be on the lower activity field, adjacent to Northpark Ave. on the east side of the campus. A huge, permanent backstop and dugout screens will be installed during the winter, and all infield grass will be removed.

"However, sometime in the future we would like to develop an on-campus facility that both the university and the community could use."

CSUSB will be considered a Division III school, meaning non-scholarship, and will play a schedule similar to the schedules of other sports. Price hopes the new coaches will be able to help with the scheduling of games.

"This will be the first time a coach has been hired this much in advance," Price said. "Hopefully he'll be a big help in finding teams to play against."

Player recruitment should be easier for the new coaches than it was for the founding coaches, because they can now plug into the

By the end of 1987, Cal State plans to field eleven teams, with swimming and track teams being strong possibilities soon after.

The site for men's baseball has not yet been determined, but Price says he has several options.

"Perris Hill Park, the Western Regional Headquarters, and Cajon High School are all possibilities," Price said.

present recruiting system, rather than starting from scratch. This should help in attaining quality players, according to Price.

Price says he is pleased with the quality of our athletic programs, and with the rate at which they have grown. When athletics were introduced last year, the goal was to have 13-15 teams at the end of year number five. By the end of the third year Cal State will be fielding eleven teams, with swimming and track and field strong possibilities for the near future.

Price would like to establish a working relationship with the community, in hopes of dividing the costs of building a lighted on-campus field which would be used for the Coyotes and other community teams.

A Few Notes About The U.S. And Libya

Dear Editor:

No one keeping up at all with current events during any six-month span over the past decade should be terribly surprised at the latest spat between Libyan Fuehrer Muammar Khadafy (pronounced: ke-Daffy) and American President Ronald Reagan. Nor should we be surprised by the European money-where-our-oil-is response, or Reagan's on-again off-again military posturing. It is, nonetheless, an opportunity to pause and analyze this situation's geo-political roots on a planetary scale.

Khadafy is like a bullyish, irate, selfish little child, who wants things his way. Reagan is like a bullyish, irate, not-quite-as-selfish larger child, one of two block bullies who chickened out once or twice and, though big enough to stomp on the smaller child, is ripe to be picked on.

I am a parent, and as such feel an instinctual urge when I see kids fighting in the street to step in and break it up. I'm older, wiser, and more importantly stronger and taller. I can assert authority to break up a tussle. I have the maturity to separate them, make them apologize, and play together. To jump back to the analogy, the problem on the planet, from a political standpoint, is we have no higher authority, no "parent" if you will, to turn to for a final, fair resolution of the dispute. No one is there to step in and force those children to shake hands, apologize, and learn to play nicely together.

If you were once a child, the real irony here is you know how much more fun it is to play together than to fight.

As a planet, we have to grow up, simply because we have no parent to turn to. We (the nations of the world) have to join together and make our own parent (an international law-making and law-enforcing body, which should act much as the federal government of the United States acts in its relations to the 50 states), and give that parent the right to step in to break up fights and take away our toys (weapons) if need be. Most of the toys will have to be thrown away when each nation cedes its right to make war on any other nation.

Though in behavior I likened Reagan and Khadafy to children, it is more reasonable to assert that mankind as a whole is in its late teenage years, if one likens the progress of the human race to the development of a single person. We are, as a species, maturing.

There is one other point worth asserting here, because trust is vital to effective international government. We humans are essentially good beings, born good and more genuinely interested in the welfare of our fellow beings than in plotting and executing their massacre. We must not let the vain imaginations of a few madmen, sensational commercialized journalistic practices, or the well-intentioned misinterpretations of the holy scriptures (particularly in this country the misbegotten concept of original sin, which, like a spiritual virus, has permeated the mind-set of so many of the U.S.'s secular and religious leaders) of the world's various religious systems to sway us from the continued recognition of this fundamental truth. A sense of our essential goodness is vital to fostering trust.

I can hear the apologists of the multi-trillion dollar defense industries gearing up their liberty or death anti-Communist freedom responses right now. "Well, the Russians won't do it. We have to be ready just in case," so on. My advice is to reread the previous paragraphs, and find a single place anywhere that I even implied that the West should shed its military burden unilaterally. On the contrary, as long as we're going to act like suspicious children about this, some fairness in the dispersion of power, while recognizing the continual deteriorating effect on international stability which weapons of mass destruction assert, must in the short run be maintained.

The international government may be formed in a fashion not dissimilar to the way the U.S. was formed, by having each nation send representatives to a planetary "constitutional convention," where the details may be hammered out. Then the representatives can return to their respective nations to have the documents ratified. It is my belief that an international government will be formed, and my hope that all nations will enter into these negotiations voluntarily by an act of consultative will. It is incumbent upon us as Americans, because of the type of government we enjoy, to lead world public opinion to the inevitability of world government and world peace. It is America's new manifest destiny, that we should arise to the call of universal peace, for the good of all mankind, even as we had arisen before to put down that subhuman abortion Adolph Hitler.

Implicit in the formation of a planetary government is the adoption of the separation of powers between legislative and judicial branches, with the possibility of either an American-style executive or English-style prime minister and other ministries; the democratic election of the legislature and the right to draft a single international military force whose purpose would not be to defend one nation's interests against another but to defend the planet's interest in maintaining world peace, the promise of which every man with insight has cherished throughout the ages, against any nation which dared to become a military aggressor against another nation.

Let's take the current U.S.-Libyan situation as an example. If such an international government were in place, the American state could take its case of terrorist harassment by Libya to the international judiciary, whose jurisdiction would be unquestioned, and whose judgement would be final and militarily enforceable. If Libya did not accept the judgement, it would, without an offensive military force of its own, stand alone against a well-equipped international military and more than 150 nations, all of them mad as HELL that that madman would dare even think of threatening to disturb the peace they're enjoying.

It is a rather delicious prospect to some people in the U.S. who are sick and tired of state-sponsored terrorism, but better still, if such an international government were in place and functioning, the situation would not arise in the first place. It would be as likely as the state of Alabama sending terrorist hit squads in the Los Angeles basin.
